

1Website Content Plan for SEO

What this is

These are pages we could add to the Blackmont Advisory website to bring in more traffic from Google. They are grouped into two tiers, roughly in the order we think they are worth doing.

None of these pages would appear in the website menu. They would sit quietly in the background and only be found by people searching Google. Anyone who lands on one gets a normal page on our site, with our branding and our contact forms.

The short version

We already have a lot of good material on the site that Google cannot currently read. Our free tools (the valuation calculator, the industry benchmark report, the sale readiness scorecard) contain real numbers and real advice, but that content only appears after a visitor clicks through the tool. Google does not click buttons, so it never sees most of it.

That means a big part of Tier 1 and Tier 2 below is not writing new content from scratch. It is taking what we already wrote and putting it on the page in a way Google can actually read.

Tier 1 - Industry pages (10 pages)

The idea: one page for each type of business we sell, answering the single question every owner types into Google first: "what is my business worth?"

We already have the numbers for these in the benchmark tool. Each page would cover what that type of business typically sells for, how long it takes to sell, what buyers look at, and what tends to push the price up or down.

Page	What it answers	Numbers we already have
Selling a cafe or restaurant	What is my cafe worth?	0.8x - 1.5x, $150k - $500k, 90-150 days

Page	What it answers	Numbers we already have
Selling a trades business	What is my plumbing or electrical business worth?	2x - 4.5x, $200k - $1m, 60-90 days
Selling a childcare centre	What do childcare centres sell for?	3x - 5x, $500k - $3m, 120-240 days
Selling an allied health practice	What is my physio or dental practice worth?	3x - 5x, $400k - $2m, 90-180 days
Selling a manufacturing business	What is my manufacturing business worth?	2x - 4x, $500k - $5m, 120-240 days
Selling a transport or logistics business	What do transport businesses sell for?	2.5x - 3.5x, $300k - $2m, 90-180 days
Selling an ecommerce business	What is my online store worth?	2.5x - 4x, $200k - $1.5m, 60-120 days
Selling a professional services firm	What is my agency or practice worth?	2x - 4x, $300k - $1.5m, 90-180 days
Selling a retail business	What is my shop worth?	1x - 2x, $80k - $400k, 60-120 days
Selling a hair and beauty salon	What is my salon worth?	1.5x - 2.5x, $50k - $300k, 60-120 days

Why these are worth

Someone searching "what is my cafe worth" is an owner thinking about selling. That is exactly the person we want. These searches are far more valuable to us than general traffic, even though the numbers are smaller.

They also work because the answer is genuinely different for each industry. A cafe and a childcare centre have almost nothing in common in how they are valued. That is what makes each page worth reading, and it is why Google will treat them as ten real pages rather than one page copied ten times.

What each page would include

- What that type of business sells for, said plainly in the first paragraph
- How long a sale usually takes, and why that industry is faster or slower

- The five things buyers look at most in that industry
 - The licensing and transfer issues specific to that sector (childcare licences, liquor licences, AHPRA registration, trade licences and so on)
 - A link through to the free valuation tool

Tier 2 - Data and guide pages (4 pages)

The idea: a small number of pages that answer the questions everyone asks and nobody wants to answer publicly.

These pages are also the ones most likely to get linked to by accountants, advisors and journalists. Links from other websites are one of the main things Google uses to decide who to rank, so these pages help the whole site, not just themselves.

1. Business sale multiples in Australia

All the industry data in one place, plus something we have that most competitors do not: how the multiple changes with the size of the business. Our own figures show it rising from roughly 1.2x for smaller businesses up to 6x - 10x for businesses above $10m profit. That size effect is genuinely useful information and it is rarely published anywhere.

2. Business broker fees in Australia

What brokers charge, how engagement fees work, what is included, and what a seller actually walks away with. There is almost no competition for this search because most brokers avoid the topic. Being the one firm that answers it openly is good for rankings and good for trust.

3. Is my business ready to sell?

The ten things buyers check, written out properly, with what a strong answer looks like versus a weak one. We already have all ten in the readiness scorecard. This page would end with a link to the scorecard itself.

4. How long does it take to sell a business?

Our timeframes by industry, plus the five stage sale process we have already written. This is the kind of straightforward question Google likes to show a direct answer for.

Summary

	What it is	Best for
Tier 1	10 industry pages	Owners thinking about selling
Tier 2	4 data and guide pages	Rankings, plus links from other sites
